Love of animals amounts to a passion PER with many people. I have seen a lady so provement, by breeding.

The annals of live stock abound in in stances of devotion, expressed in vigor-ous language, as, for instance, a dictum of the great Lord Althorp that the man tho cannot sit on a hurdle for an hour who cannot sit on a hurdle for an hour looking at a sheep is not fit to be a sheep breeder. It is related of Mr. Humphries, the famous pioneer and breeder of improved Hampshire downs, that he would hank his horse's bridle over a hurdle stake and look at a newly born lamb in the new turning it round and exemption. was always among the pigs watching among masters, but it is universal among stockmen, who study their animals literally by the hour. Shepherds, when apparently doing nothing, are studying their sheep, as any one may find who enters into conversation with them. It means actual appreciation of each inti vidual in a flock of 500 or 1,000. They recognize them by their faces, which to a casual observer are all alike. This must be love or the greatest possible interest, without which no one can be a them to resist the temptations of com-merce and manufacture in order to dedi-cate their lives to country life. They may have repented of their choice, but for all that their hearts are still true to their earliest fancy. > The foregoing remarks are suggestive of a certain romance or poetry without which high art cannot exist. The boy who loves to watch birds and collect eggs naturally grows into a spot of a fencier, but in mature years he will lead fancier; but in mature years he will look back on his youthful arder as the bud of his future taste. Seasoned breeders will remember the romance which prompted advantageous the alliance may have proved, judged by a money standard. WEDDING SUPERSTITIONS.

From the London Mail. Though popular superstitions may lack reason or reasonable explanation, they must have an origin, and this has formed the basis of quite an interesting book by T. Sharper Knowlson. The question of the wedding ring and why it should be placed on the fourth finger on the left hand he traces of preserving a ring from bruises, having this one quality peculiar to itself, that it cannot be extended but in company with some other finger, whereas the rest may be singly stretched to their full length and straightness."

The old-fashioned notion that a shoe should bring luck at a wedding is another superstition curious to explain.
"It was in the sense of confirming a sale or exchange that the Jews understood the removal and giving of a shoe or sandal. When the kinsman of Boaz consented to waive his claim upon the parcel of land which Naomi would sell in favor of Boaz, he 'drew off his shoe,' for 'this was a testimony in Israel.'
"In a different sense the removal of a shoe marks the winding up of nego-

words:
"I will not take off my shoe to the son of a slave."
"In Anglo-Saxon marriages the bride's father delivered her shoe to the bridegroom, who touched her on the head with it in token of his authority."

From the Pittsburg Post. "I fear she is a sad coquette. Have you a place in her heart?"
"I'm one of the strap-hangers."
